2 DEAD, 4 WOUNDED IN PRISON BREAK TRY U.S. RATIFICATION OF NAVY TREATY SEEN BY BORAH

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

All we hope is that Saturday's weather holds over for Sunday.

Last Sunday, one will remember, it alternated between storms and sunshine.

To tell you the truth, there is one job which we wouldn't have as a gift.

That job is being weather man.

Friday night the forecaster declared it would rain Saturday. It did, we didn't see it.

At this writing, the alleged weather man hadn't made up his mind as to whether or not it would rain today.

One of the worst advertisements we've ever seen was displayed on Macdonald avenue yesterday afternoon.

A brand new automobile of popular make was parked at the curb with its woman driver bending over the hood.

A few minutes later a friend of hers came along and she tried his luck with the machine, to no avail.

A few minutes later along came a mechanic, who was summoned in a hurry.

The mechanic worked on the car for half an hour and finally he went away, leaving the car started.

A half hour later he came back with his helper and together they finally got the car started.

In the meantime several hundred passersby had seen the car and had remarked about it.

In the cities when one sees a parked car with the driver bending over the hood, one generally passes by with a laugh.

Out on the open road it is different.

And, speaking of machines, it is just about time that the caravan of tin can tourists start.

Before long one can see cars with license plates from every state in the union passing up and down San Pablo avenue.

And with the coming of the spring days, the big parade of cars, bumper to bumper, horns tooting, will be seen on Sunday afternoons.

We have come to the conclusion that the best Sunday auto trip one can take is on Monday.

RIOT ENDED BY TEAR GAS

HOWARD, R. I., April 19.—(U.P.)—A veteran trusty was shot to death, a long term convict committed suicide, four other men were wounded and a dozen persons were overcome with tear gas during a riot within the walls of the Rhode Island state prison here today.

Sixteen desperate prisoners who participated in the riotous disturbance following the frustration of an elaborate plot to free themselves, during which they were held cornered in the prison library and covered with tear gas.

The dead:

Poleg Champlin, trusty.

Thomas "Pretty" McNeil, former Pawtucket gangster, serving a 35 year sentence.

The wounded:

Harry McVey, guard, reported dying at a Rhode Island hospital.

Nicholas Faccio, prisoner.

John "Whitey" Miller, a long term prisoner.

An unidentified man, alleged to have participated in the plot to free the convicts through outside aid.

Women Present

It was 2:10 p. m. when an automobile bearing Massachusetts license plates drove into the prison yard. Three men alighted and entered the rotunda.

The rotunda is divided from the prison proper by iron bars and a mesh wire.

When the trio appeared, several women were standing in the rotunda, chatting through the bars with convicts on the other side.

Entering, the three men asked to see McNeil, who subsequently (Continued on Page 8)

More than 150,000 acres of Contra Costa county land will produce crops in 1930, according to a survey completed by Dr. George W. Barr.

A substantial increase in the Contra Costa county irrigated acreage has occurred in the past few years, the survey reveals, the largest single addition being about 10,000 acres within the east Contra Costa irrigation district. This district, of which Brentwood is the center, now contains 20,000 acres of land all subject to irrigation. Water will be supplied to 16,000 acres this year, according to Dr. Barr. The remainder of the area is producing crops without irrigation.

In all a gross area of 88,000 acres of lands in this county, are provided with the facilities for irrigation, he stated. This includes the major portion of the Byron Bethany tract on district and the Contra Costa delta lands east and north of Oakley.

Contra Costa county also contains more than 65,000 acres of non irrigated land producing crops; nearly half of this area is in the Walnut Creek, Ignacio and Clayton valley areas. This section contains some of the finest non irrigated land in the state.

SENATE TO GET PACT SOON

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(U.P.)—Early ratification of the London Naval treaty was predicted tonight by Chairman William E. Borah, of the Senate foreign relations committee.

This forecast came within 24 hours after Chairman Hale of the senate naval affairs committee, had declared the treaty proposed to alter a fundamental American policy with regard to cruisers and that the testimony of naval experts should be heard by his committee before judgment was passed.

Borah disclosed that the administration plan is to send the naval treaty to the senate soon after the American delegation returns home, provided Secretary of State Stimson, chairman of the delegation does not object.

"I believe it will be ratified within two weeks after it is submitted," Borah said.

While he preferred to withhold final judgment until after he has examined the treaty text, he said so far as its contents are known he finds no serious objection.

Many have foreseen in the light of these developments a clash between the senate foreign relations committee and the house and senate naval committee.

Chairman Britten of the House naval committee tonight said he intends to ask Secretary of Navy Adams and naval experts of the delegation to testify before his committee regarding the effect of the treaty on the American navy.

PLANES RAZE BAY CITIES IN MYTHICAL AIR COMBAT

Richmond citizens yesterday had a vague premonition of the disastrous effect an organized air raid might have upon the city, when scores of army planes circled the town in a mythical bombing raid.

The planes, principally of the bombing type, circled the city for several minutes and then resumed their flight to San Francisco where thousands witnessed the air maneuvers.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—(U.P.)—The fighting air forces of the United States, demonstrated their ability before thousands of spectators here today, when 150 army airplanes flew to San Francisco from Mather field, where the army air corps field exercises are being held.

Before Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco, their distinguished guest, the air fleet went thru its full repertoire. Winging low over San Francisco bay, the 150 planes swept in and passed in review before the stand where the dignitaries stood.

Pass in Review

First came the bombers, then the attack, and finally the more speedy pursuit planes roared by the reviewing stand.

Attack and pursuit planes disappeared into the sky and the bombardment group circled back and displayed their skill in flying in close formation. Hardly five feet separated the wings of the huge machines as they swept overhead.

Suddenly a roaring whine was heard and dropping like plummet from the sky, 40 pursuit planes came straight down in simulated attack on the bombardment formation. Straightening out of their sheer dive the tiny pursuit planes soared upward again, but when 50 feet from the huge bombers, in actual warfare, the machine guns would have been spitting death through the propellers at the bombers.

Stage Dog Fight

Pursuit planes then thrilled the crowd with "dog fights." Two planes would engage in a desperate attempt to maneuver themselves into position to destroy the other. Twisting and turning, using all the tricks of their profession, the pilots demonstrated how wing slipping, Immelman turns, falling leaf, and nose dives enabled them to either elude the enemy, or "get on his tail" and destroy him.

Use of smoke screens in warfare to conceal planes and build-up, concluded the afternoon's performance. Sailing back and forth across the field, pursuit craft loosened the chemical which turns to a white vapor when it encounters the air.

The grim spectacle of warfare faces the men when they arrive at Sacramento tomorrow. Starting Monday the last week of simulated combat between the "reds" and the "blues" starts.

Climaxing the week will come the defense of San Francisco by the "blue" air unit next Thursday. A large naval force is assumed to be steaming on the city and the planes will come to grips with them at the Golden Gate, to prevent them from entering S. Francisco bay.

BOMBING RAID RECALLS S. F. FIRE

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—Pictures of horror drawn today by imaginative reporters in telling of the mythical destruction of San Francisco by army air raiders, furnished startling reading for old-timers who lived through the earthquake and fire which almost leveled the city 24 years ago.

Aside from the coincidence of dates, the scenes pictures in today's fantastic accounts ran a striking parallel to authentic accounts of the disaster of 1906.

Old-timers, carried back to that black day by the arrival of its anniversary, rubbed their eyes and looked again at today's newspapers. Compare the two dispatches.

EASTER SUNDAY OBSERVED IN MANY COUNTRIES TODAY

By MAYNARD C. YOUNGS

Easter, the anniversary of our Lord's resurrection from the dead, which is celebrated in every Christian country today, is one of the three great festivals of the Christian year—the others being Christmas and Whitsunday.

From the earliest period of Christianity, Easter Day has been celebrated by believers with great joy and accounted the "Queen of Festivals."

In primitive times, it was customary for Christians to salute each other on the morning of this day by exclaiming: "Christ is Risen," to which was answered, "Christ is Risen Indeed." This custom is still retained in the Greek church.

Name Told

In the east, the common name of Easter Day was the "Paschal Feast" as it was observed at the same time as the "Pascha" or Jewish passover.

The name Easter, as used by English speaking Christians, is derived from the name of a Saxon deity, Estro, whose feast was celebrated every year in the spring about the same time as the Christian festival.

Although there is no difference in opinion as to WHY Easter is observed, considerable dissension has been evident as to WHEN the day should be feted.

Easter Day is not fixed as to one particular day like Christmas, on December 25, but moves backward or forward according as the full moon next after the vernal equinox falls nearer or further from the beginning of prayer books to find Easter is: "Easter Day is always the first Sunday after the full moon which happens upon or next after the 21st day of March; and if the full moon happens upon a Sunday, Easter Day is the Sunday after."

Many Customs

Many customs are observed in various lands and countries, although the old Easter Day customs which still linger among us, vary considerably in form.

The custom of distributing the "pace" or "pasche age," which was once almost universal among Christians, is still observed by children and the peasantry in many countries.

Even in Scotland, where the great festivals have been suppressed for centuries, the young people still get their hardboiled, dyed eggs, which they roll about or throw, and finally eat.

Old Customs

One of the oldest customs, still practiced in countries of Shropshire, Cheshire and Lancashire, in England, is called "lifting" or "heaving."

This consists with the men, on Easter Monday, and the women, on Easter Tuesday, going about in a party and attempting entrance into various houses. On Monday,

CHURCHES TO OBSERVE DAY

Sunrise this morning will witness throngs of people from all over the Eastbay, joining in the annual Easter morning services held jointly by the churches of Richmond at the top of Nichol Nob.

The services are held yearly on Easter Sunday and in anticipation of a large crowd, details of police and Boy Scouts will be on hand to cope with the traffic.

Although the services had originally been scheduled for 9:30 due to the lateness of Easter this year the Ministerial Union decided to hold the ceremonies at 5:30.

Rev. Kenneth B. Wallace of the First Baptist church will preside at the gathering; Rev. D. A. Williams of the Community Methodist church will deliver the Easter sermon; Rev. C. G. Lindemann of the Wesley Methodist church will lead community singing; Rev. A. A. Pratt of the First Presbyterian church will give the opening prayer and Rev. P. H. Prince of the First Methodist church will pronounce the benediction.

Fair Weather

Although last reports last night, indicated fair weather today, in case of rain, the services will be held in the First Methodist church West Richmond.

In connection with the city wide observation of Easter Sunday, elaborate ceremonies and pageants have been prepared for today's services.

At the Trinity Lutheran church at Barrett avenue and Nineteenth at the Trinity Lutheran church at Barrett avenue and Nineteenth street, a special Easter service will be held. Rev. A. W. Koehler, pastor, will speak on the subject, "The Easter Message."

Music Planned

The channel of the church will be filled with beautiful floral decorations, accentuated with a six foot Easter Cross decorated with Easter lilies. Special musical selections have been arranged for the services with P. Schmittmann singing solo solos; Miss Florence Sage playing violin solos; and Miss Elsa Reinicker accompany them at the piano.

"The Victorious Christ," an Easter pageant will be presented at the First Christian church at the evening services, which will be followed by an Easter cantata entitled, "Our Lord Victorious," by Harry Rowe Shelley, and sung by (Continued on Page 8)

Firemen's Ball Here Saturday

One more week of suspense and anticipation, and the eleventh annual Firemen's Ball will be a reality, and will pass on into history.

Extensive preparations have been made for the success of the affair, which is to be held at the East Shore park next Saturday night.

In addition to the dancing, high class radio entertainment will be provided in the intermissions. Heading the stars who will be present at the dance, will be "Mac and His Gang" of KFCR fame.

Driver Faces Police Court

Joe Ananda, charged with illegal possession of liquor, was arraigned in justice court yesterday before Judge A. A. Alstrom and will appear for trial early this week before Police Judge C. A. O'Brien. Ananda was arrested Friday night after his automobile collided with a machine driven by R. D. Brink of Richmond. A bottle of wine was found by officers in Ananda's car, police reported.

FIRE MOURNERS PLAN SUICIDE

VIENNA, April 19.—UP—Approximately 100 women who lost children in the fire in Costeshti, Roumania, on Good Friday announced their resolution tonight to commit suicide by starving themselves at the common grave in which the victims will be buried tomorrow.

A common grave was dug tonight amid the blackened ruins of the village church where 136 persons, including most of the youth of Costeshti were burned to death on Good Friday.

The unidentified dead and some of the other victims of the disaster will be buried in the grave Easter Day, but there will be no special hymns at the funeral services, because all 20 members of the village choir died in the fire.

The two priests also were burned to death. One of them had grown gray in the service of the little church, the townspeople said. He was 80 years old, but he had planned carefully for the Easter services tomorrow. One of the few who escaped from the burning church saw him at the last moment standing at the altar, holding his bible close to his breast.

Almost every family in Costeshti had lost one or more members in the fire, and several families were wiped out. The survivors explained the circumstances haltingly. Most of the youths of the town who attend college in the capital had come home for Easter vacation. They were in the church last night, and most of them perished. Many small children also were in the congregation and they hardly had a chance to escape.

School Districts Vote To Merge

MARTINEZ, April 19.—Climaxing a period of high feeling over the results of a previous Danville, Green Valley school district merger, the vote today was in favor of the merger 28-21.

In the previous election, the merger was defeated by one vote, and culminated in the arrest of two men, alleged to have voted in a fraudulent manner.

BOY SCOUT TROOPS HOLD MERIT BADGE EXHIBITS

From a wooded nook in the south east corner of the gymnasium at the Roosevelt school yesterday evening, visitors at the Boy Scout Merit Badge exhibit strolled to a miniature electric shop, and then on to a printer, a first aid camp and collection of reptiles. Eleven Scout troops had exhibits at the school.

The Scout jamboree was started with a parade with Scouts from every troop in the city participating, as well as the drill team and drum corps of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Mayor A. L. Paulsen, Chief of Police Dan Cox and John A. Miller led the parade. The line of march was from First and Macdonald avenue to Twenty-third street and Macdonald and return.

6 REDS HELD IN S.F. RIOT

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—(U.P.)—Tipped off in advance of their coming, a mixed squad of federal deputies, police and plain clothes men repulsed an attack on the U. S. Customs house late today, almost before it had begun.

One man was taken unconscious to a hospital, and five men and one woman were placed under arrest.

Federal officials were appraised several days by secret service operatives that the attack was to be made today and a cordon of guards had stood around the building since yesterday.

"Plans of the radicals to 'wreck the building' in protest of possible deportation of eight or their number arrested after demonstrations in bay cities on 'Red Thursday,' were rudely checked by a half hundred nightsticks.

Also, U. S. Marshal, Fred Enola, was in receipt today of an anonymous letter warning him that the attack was to take place, and that a similar one was scheduled at immigration headquarters in Los Angeles.

Of the eight radicals arrested recently, only one, Fudatichi Kemmopsu, Japanese, has been ordered deported. He has appealed to the U. S. supreme court. One of the radicals held pending action by immigration authorities is Mike Daniels, chairman of the Council for the Unemployed, arrested two weeks ago when he led in a disorderly hubbub which threatened to break up a meeting of the board of supervisors.

MARRIAGE LICENSE

Age W. Rasmussen, 48 and Marie G. Bork, 53, both of 4114 Nevin avenue Richmond, applied for a marriage license in Martinez recently.

GIRL HITS POLICE CAR

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—UP—The idiosyncrasies of an automobile when the brakes are suddenly applied and the street is wet, today brought the downfall of a pretty Napa county girl.

Miss Orlene Harvey, 22, of Cedar Knoll ranch, was halted before Police Judge Sylvain Lazarus, charged with the heinous offense of driving her expensive sedan plump into a police car.

Complaint was made by two officers, Emmanuel Rose and Joseph McFerran, of Central Station, both of whom vowed that they had never received such a shock as when Miss Harvey's bumper aroused them from their private thoughts by slicing off a section of fender.

However, Judge Lazarus decided that Miss Harvey had not acted with malice aforethought and when the girl pleaded that she had never hit a police car before and promised never to do it again, she was allowed to leave the bar of justice unsentenced and unfined.

L. W. Duke Evans Reported Improved

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Moores Marshall

When Mrs. Coolidge Moves

EVERY woman in the United States, we think, must be glad that simple, friendly, charming Grace Coolidge is to have a wonderful new home of her own—a home with a swimming pool, tennis courts, glorious gardens, even more glorious beech trees to give coolness and privacy. For every woman knows how weary even even gracious Grace Coolidge must be of living so to speak, in a tourist's marketplace, with her front piazza rocking chair on Massasoit Street forever at the mercy of every pointing finger.

The Beeches obviously will be a delightful home for the Coolidges, their guests and their dogs. Many a woman may envy Mrs. Coolidge its possession, though no woman grudges it to her. But no woman, on the other hand, envies her the job that lies ahead. We mean the exhausting, worrying, heart-wrenching job of moving out of the old two-family house—which, even when the Coolidges lived in the White House was "home" for them—and into the new sixteen-room establishment, set in the center of its nine acres.

The hard, heavy physical work of moving will be done for Mrs. Coolidge—although she herself will pack the trunks, including her husband's. Is there ever a man, even an ex-President of the United States, who finds himself equal to packing a trunk if he has a wife to put on the job? But neither Grace Coolidge nor any other homemaker in like case escapes the mental toll of trekking from one dwelling-place to another, the terrible task of deciding what to take and what to leave behind.

HERE, again, something tells us that Calvin will be worse than useless. He is a New Englander. He is thrifty. He is a MAN! Therefore, it almost certainly "goes against the grain" for him to throw anything away, anything at all, however useless, worthless, antique.

If his wife observes, mildly, "There's a lot of old stuff down cellar which I'm sure we shall never want again," we can almost hear him answering, "Oh, there might be a use for it. Better take it along."

If Mrs. Coolidge declares, with decision, "Calvin, there's an old suit of yours that's a disgrace—I'm not going to pack it"—she will probably be met with the indignant protest, "But they're my fishing clothes—you mustn't throw 'em away!" The plain truth of the matter is that man probably was descended not from the monkey but from the squirrel—and that's why he still is ridden by the passion to hoard in holes!

The only way in which Grace Coolidge, or any other good housewife, can shake absurd accumulations of rubbish when the move, is just calmly to eliminate the non-essential and say nothing about it to her husband. Even then she must steel herself, for the next five years at least, to meet his reproachful plaint, "I haven't seen that since we moved—you must have thrown it away!"

WHAT she will take with her is the mental problem which Mrs. Coolidge cannot escape, during the weeks ahead. What she must leave behind is the equally inescapable emotional problem.

For here is a home in which a wife and mother has spent the greater part of her married life, a home in which her two boys grew up. Neither is with her any longer. She knows that John is happy in a home of his own. She knows that Calvin has his own place in a House of Many Mansions. Yet, in a sense, both boys, the living and the dead, are forever in the home that sheltered their boyhood.

The doorsill over which they stumbled on the riotous way home from school, the kitchen pantry of which they robbed the dignified jar, the room where their mother came to say goodnight—the very walls which, as Mrs. Coolidge herself recalled in a magazine article, still seem to echo to the whirr of electric trains racing years ago by two little boys—these are things that must be left behind. Inextinguishable as the scent of dried rose leaves in an old blue Canton jar, there must linger in that old house on Massasoit Street the most delicate, intangible, exquisite memories of a golden age of happy childhood.

Every woman understands—especially if she herself has left what was the home of her children. Every woman knows that moving day for Grace Coolidge will mean inescapably a wistful goodbye to a place forever associated with "two little boys," a place where a father and mother and two little boys were happy together. Oh, well, little boys grow old, homes go, and life goes on—life which, in The Beeches, should be of a spacious and gracious dignity and happiness. To the home's new mistress her countrywomen can only wish a full measure of the happiness of home-making—and, of the "sadness of farewell," but the briefest, least blither drop.

AS ONE MAN THINKS

THE WOMAN OF IT: Permit me to thank you for your article in which you call for "three cheers for the American husband!" As one reads of the conduct of the artist Marchand, and remembers many similar instances on the part of European husbands, it makes the blood of an American man boil. Of course, American husbands may be found with similar ideas about marital fidelity, but I believe the vast majority are such believers in fair play and common decency that, when they know their wives are making an honest effort to live up to their part of the bargain, they, too, are loyal to their vows.

Your term "messy" fits perfectly these extra-marital affairs. They are so unnecessary and so unsatisfactory, for certainly any normal, healthy wife will so respond to affection and loyalty on the part of her husband that she need never have to go elsewhere for that emotional satisfaction that his nature craves.

It will be a sad day for America, and especially for its women, if the European idea of women becomes common. Unfortunately, too many women, intoxicated by the new freedom accorded them, are doing all they can to lower the American ideal. Their tolerance of too familiar petting—I am not referring to the old-fashioned and usually perfectly innocent "spoiling"—and their affected "broad-mindedness" are not conducive to helping young men to retain high ideals in their treatment of the women.

Thank heaven, though, such women constitute but a small minority of American womanhood.

Scenes in Antwerp

"One summer evening in a city of the North I saw all the faces of the old painters." Rimbaud, a famous Frenchman, wrote these words. He was talking about Antwerp. It's about this time of the year, when spring drives them from the chimney corners and the smell of oil cakes pervades the squares, sure sign that the Antwerp Kermesse or fair is not far distant, that one may see them all in life and living colors. Here above a pot of "Geusen-beer" you see a red-nosed jocular phiz that belongs in one of the Jan Steen's tableaux. Its owner's eyes are half closed with mirth and the delight he finds in chatting with one of Rubens's titian blondes of ample proportions. The beggar who passes and who calls a greeting to the two full of bonhomie and good fellowship just seems to have slipped out of one of the Bruegel's canvases. The attitudes of the crowds gorging themselves in true sensuous Flemish style in the coffee houses and waffle barracks, the food they consume, the colors even, all seem to hark back to the Renaissance and further back even. Leon Daudet, incomparable painter of street life, who but recently came back from a two years' sojourn in Brussels, found the Flemish women of rare beauty, "different from the beauty of Parisiennes and London girls." There are two principal types, he says, "the brunette, with eyes of black or circled with steel-blue, in whom something survives of the Spanish, but with longer legs and without the rolling motion (salero) of the Castillians, and the blonde, of course, pure North Sea type, with hair that is either yellow gold or silver and a skin of astonishing whiteness." The latter was Rubens's favorite. His "Our Lady of Flanders" is even of that complexion. "There is little doubt that the type was such in his time, as Rubens painted it. In that case it has undergone a change, it has been modified and refined," says M. Daudet, who apparently had his eyes open. "The smile is less mocking than in the Parisienne," he adds, "less angelic than in the 'Londonienne,' nevertheless it breathes sweetness, confidence and health." And then he adds: "In Antwerp lovers embrace in the streets. Voila, something that is perfectly all right!"

Made in Germany

The ancient city of Trondhjem, the old ecclesiastical centre of Scandinavia and the gate to "the land of the midnight sun," is in a dilemma. There are a few modest shooting-galleries in the town and the targets have the shape of figures portraying prominent personages from the old German Kaiser era, such as Wilhelm II, ex-Crown Prince Wilhelm, the King of Saxony, the Grand Duke of Baden, Bismarck, etc., all in full-dress parade. Some patriotic Germans, misunderstanding the situation and believing that the shooting-galleries were hot-houses for serious anti-German and especially for anti-royalist propaganda, have sent an ultimatum to the tourist organizations of Trondhjem to the effect that if the targets are not removed immediately the city of Trondhjem will be boycotted by all German tourists this summer. The associations have now made overtures to the proprietors of the shooting-ranges, only to receive the surprising reply that the targets were all "made in Germany."

LADY—I certainly will. I'm for strict enforcement.

C. T.—I'm not interested in that, madam.

LADY—Oh, you only mark down answers that are favorable to the wet! I thought there was something crooked about that ballot.

C. T.—Madam, what is your relationship to the head of the family?

LADY—I'm only his wife, but he'll vote the way I do. My husband favors stricter enforcement, too. Now let me see you put that down.

C. T.—Is your home owned or rented?

LADY—What business is that of yours? Every home owner favors Prohibition. Why, without Prohibition there would be no American home. You wouldn't try to get me to vote wet, mister—I warn you.

C. T.—Do you own a radio set?

LADY—Of course we do. About 20,000,000 radio sets in American homes if the wage earners squandered their money in open saloons. No, nor automobiles or vacuum cleaners or washing machines, either. I'm for enforcement and I want to see you mark it down.

C. T.—What was your age at your last birthday?

LADY—What difference does that make? Every woman, no matter how young or old she is, stands squarely for Prohibition. Why, the W. C. T. U. represents 16,000,000 women alone! Just mark that down and turn it in to your editor.

C. T.—Have you attended school or college at any time since Sept. 17?

LADY—Yes, I have and I didn't see a bit of drinking. I've been to school dances and parties and not one single hip flask have I seen. It's terrible

New Shades in Faces

CHAMELEON-LIKE, the modern woman changes the color of her skin to suit her costumes, and the time of day and the season of the year and even her very moods.

Faces—1930 models—shade all the way from faintest cream to bronze. Certainly a marvelous mode for the woman who is striving for "infinite variety." But there's danger in such a mode, chérie, grave danger of going to unflattering extremes. For instance, it takes a smart face, smart wardrobe and smarter personality combined to "set away with" a life-guard make-up. Certainly, there's nothing winsome about bronze skin (artificial, we mean) cut to a Nordic pattern. You know the type—the lean jawed, angular featured face tinted a dirty brown. How very much more appetizing that kind of face is when it wears a light gold glow. That is, if it simply must go tan, you understand.

Really, unless the skin texture is of the finest, almost any of the off-shades in powder is hazardous. We are talking particularly of a rather poor skin we saw the other day under a merciless sun. Powder had caked on it and the poor face was peppered, not with blackheads but with tan heads. Poor quality powder, be sure, but we doubt if the finest quality in the shade and on that skin would have been much of an improvement.

Novelty powders were never meant for a coarse-grained skin. So, a skin that is not fine should at least be wise enough to go in for refining treatment or if not that, then disguising powder. The pore face ought not to be finicky in the matter of make-up shades. It should rest content with nothing less than a perfect match regardless of the mode.

Now, that once again it is smart to be pretty, all the more reason why we should think first about becomingness and only second about modishness when we dress our faces. Nor can we complain about a limited choice of tans. Up-to-date cosmetic counters display practically all the skin shades there are in this world, including the South African. And what we don't see we have only to ask for, the modern art of powder blending being what it is.

We wish we had space here for the discussion of shades in rouge, but some other time. Meanwhile, you might send along your stamped return envelope for

The Farmer's Advice

By Alfalfa Smith

A YOUNG man has this to say: "If you see a fault in another, you have the same thing or something worse, otherwise you would not recognize it."

This line of reason, it seems to me, is archaic.

In short, he thinks that I must be drunk or must have been drunk in order to criticize a man who comes home and beats his wife when he is drunk.

The world is full of half-baked theories, and it is hard to separate the wheat from the chaff. It is hard, with it all, to preserve your sweetness, as Emerson would say.

A DISH A DAY

By Karen Hollis
Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

The real test of a cook is her ability to make Angel Food cake. At least, that is the legend handed down to us by our grandmothers. Perhaps it was difficult to achieve a cake of filmy lightness in the days of old-fashioned ranges, but now it really is no trick at all. Yet many housewives are timid about attempting anything which they have heard is fraught with hazards.

With the coming of improved baking utensils and stoves with thermometer attachments, baking was greatly simplified. It is now possible for the most inexperienced cook to get perfect results—that is, if she follows directions exactly, and takes great care in making measurements.

An experienced cook can make the cake, taking great care to reserve a shell of sufficient thickness to hold the filling. Take the inner section of the cake, which has been removed, and separate it into crumbs.

FILLING
Angel Food cake crumbs
1 cup diced pineapple (fresh or canned)
1 cup diced marshmallows
1/2 cup candied cherries
1/2 cups whipped cream
4 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix and chill the cream, sugar and vanilla. Mix the cake, the other ingredients and add them to one-half of the whipped cream. Refill the cake shell with this fruit cream and spread the remaining sweetened, whipped cream over the top. Chill for several hours before serving.

ANGEL FOOD BISQUE
10 egg whites
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 1/2 cups sugar

The Budget for Clothing

IF YOU are budgeting your income you will live up to it more easily if you plan your expenditures. This is particularly true in the item of clothing, and it is well to consider this in preparing the Easter shopping lists.

Look over the clothing on hand and decide what will do for the coming season, and what is worth remodeling. Then estimate the cost of remodeling and the clothing required to complete the wardrobe for the season. If this amount exceeds the sum your budget allows, decide what you can best do without.

When you go shopping do not allow sales to lure you into buying an article because it is cheap. Buy only what you need and in making your selections consider whether the article is appropriate and becoming. If your budget necessitates economy and you may have to wear the garment steadily, and possibly more than one season, select clothing that is inconspicuous and avoid extreme fashions. Study fabrics and learn to recognize quality. Do not buy any wearing apparel just because it is cheap.

It is really surprising how much can be saved by planning in advance and careful buying.

Laugh It Off If You Can

NOW, was it quite nice of you to leave home in such a stormy mood that morning just because a friend wife handed out the information that you are selfish?

Did she tell the truth? Think it over calmly and see if she was justified in saying what she did.

Of course, being found fault with is not pleasant but if one deserves the condemnation why be disturbed about it? Would it not be better to accept the wife's statement as a warning? You probably need a thought of yourself as a selfish person.

On the other hand if you consider the accusation undeserved, what do you gain by allowing it to distress you? Why have a family quarrel over it? It would be so much better to cultivate a cheerful sense of humor and make the home surroundings happy for all. It can be done and it is worth while. Try it!

Good to Know

To fill cracks and repair furniture you will find the wood composition, which comes in tubes like paste, very convenient. It is easily manipulated and there is no waste. It becomes hard as the wood and needs merely to be stained and polished to become quite invisible.

ARMY PLANES DESTROY BAY CITIES IN MYTHICAL COMBAT

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—1930—Charred and broken bodies lay in piles of hundreds today in the smoldering ruins of what was yesterday a great city. "San Francisco" whose arrogant skyline was a challenge to the world of commerce, is today a ragged silhouette that hardly is above ground. The unbroken foundations of its once sky-towering structures served today as the crude graves of its uncounted dead.

Survivors Read further in the 1906 dispatch: "Like pappie wraiths returning to familiar places, the forms of surviving thousands could be dimly ascertained through clouds of smoke as they peered about the ruins for a charred body which still bore some marks of identification, so that relatives and friends might have a decent burial."

"Today's dispatch: 'Clouds of acrid smoke made harder the task of thousands of bereaved and destitute survivors who searched among the ruins of their homes for the bodies of relatives and what little of worldly goods might be left.'"

"As far as the eye could reach was an unbroken panorama of desolation dealt overnight by the wildly swinging 'flats of nature gone mad.'"

"On every hand was chaos conceived in the brain of war-crazed mankind and delivered by the giant thunder birds of destruction."

It was quite a coincidence that the air raid took place on the anniversary of the earthquake and fire.

SONG HITS IN NEW TALKIE HERE

Five song hits from the pianos of seven of America's most popular composers provide the tune background of "Chasing Rainbows" musical extravaganza which will open today at the Fox-California theater with Charles King and Bessie Love in the featured roles.

Milton Ager and Jack Yellen, noted for their "Ain't She Sweet" and "Wonder What Became of Sally," "Forgive Me," "Crazy Words" and "Hard-Hearted Hannah" wrote "Lucky Me, Lovable You," "Everybody Tap" and "Happy Days Are Here Again" especially for the new Metro Goldwyn Mayer production. "Everybody Tap" fits into a huge dancing ensemble with Miss Love and the trained chorus of two hundred boys and girls. "Lucky Me, Lovable You" is the love song sung by Charles King and Miss Love and "Happy Days Are Here Again" is the musical setting for the finale spectacle, filmed in Technicolor.

Also on the same bill is Fox talking News and Our Gang comedy.

CAMEO KIRBY TO BE SHOWN HERE

Travel advancement since the days of 1850, the time setting for "Cameo Kirby," Fox Movietone romantic musical drama, is graphically illustrated by an advertisement appearing in the Daily Picayune of New Orleans of that period.

The paper was accurately reproduced for a short scene in the picture, which will be seen and heard Tuesday at the Fox-California theater.

According to the Picayune advertisement, printed by the Great Eastern Mail, it was possible, by their service, to make the trip from Mobile, Ala., to New York in eight days.

"Persons going north can now travel from Mobile, via Montgomery and Columbus to Augusta, Ga., in 86 hours," the advertisement reads, "From Augusta to New York in four days."

"This splendid line of mail coaches is now in full operation, leaving Mobile every day at one o'clock and running through to Montgomery in 36 hours; thence to Columbus, Ga., by coaches and railroads in 86 hours."

"Passengers leaving Mobile in this line may calculate with the utmost certainty on arriving at New York with the mail in less than eight days; and may, if they prefer, rest a night, at Montgomery, as there is a morning and an evening line leaving that place daily."

J. Harold Murray and Norma Terris, noted Broadway musical stars, are co-starred in "Cameo Kirby," which was directed by Edwin Cummings. "Cameo Kirby" is a musical romance of the New Orleans Mardi Gras and the adventures of a gay rover gambler.

Also on the same bill is a Clarke and McCullough comedy, "Knights Out."

Oregon Politics Reported Quiet

PORTLAND, April 19. —(UP)—The most lethargic primary campaign Oregon has experienced in years had swung into its last month today, with practically no interest manifest except in the gubernatorial races of each party. The election is May 16.

Senator Charles L. McNary, Oregon's senior member of the upper house, appeared in his own party unopposed. Former congressman Elton Watkins is the only democratic candidate for the nomination for senator.

Congressman W. C. Hawley, chairman of the House ways and means committee, is unopposed in the republican nomination for the first district, with W. A. Delzell running for the democratic nomination. Congressman R. R. Butler is unopposed for re-nomination in the second district, and there is no democratic candidate.

In the second district, which is

Local Driver Given Sentence

BERKELEY, April 19.—Arthur R. Tomkin, 42, of Richmond Avenue, was yesterday sentenced to five months in the Alameda county jail on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor.

Tomkin was arrested on the Berkeley causeway after he had allegedly turned his machine around on the pier and was blocking traffic. According to court records, Tomkin admitted he was intoxicated and asked for leniency, pleading he was supporting a wife and two children.

Judge Oliver Youngs of Berkeley denied his plea, and declared that drunken drivers in Berkeley are to be treated with severity in the future.

KIDDIES ENJOY EASTER EGG HUNT

More than 1200 local children thronged to the First Street baseball park yesterday morning to participate in the annual Easter egg hunt, sponsored by the Richmond merchants and the Fox California theater. A. V. Brady, manager of the theater was in charge.

To handle the crowd and maintain order, Chief of Police Dan Cox and Fire Chief W. B. Cooper had details of their men on hand.

Each of the children entering the park were given an Easter egg, and at a given signal, the 1200 some odd children started the hunt.

Eight of the eggs were marked so that the finders might claim prizes at the Whoopee Matinee at the Fox California theater yesterday afternoon.

The merchants who donated the prizes included Alberts, Inc., The Fashion, Federal Outfitting company, Furrer, Garfinkles, Gensler Lee Jewelry company, LaMoine Spring sand sanitarium at Calisomery Ward and company, Poulsen jewelry store, Richmond Hardware company, Schrader Furniture company, Clinton E. Smith, Carl Richards and Mechanics bank. A. G. Panadakis furnished the Easter eggs at cost.

DESOTO EIGHT CARBURETOR LAUDED

Every great invention has had its period of test and experimentation before its final acceptance. This is true of the down-draft carburetor, which is a feature of the new De Soto straight eight power plant. Years of convincing trial, in racing cars, motorboats, airplane engines and tractors, preceded the adoption of this principle by Chrysler Motors engineers.

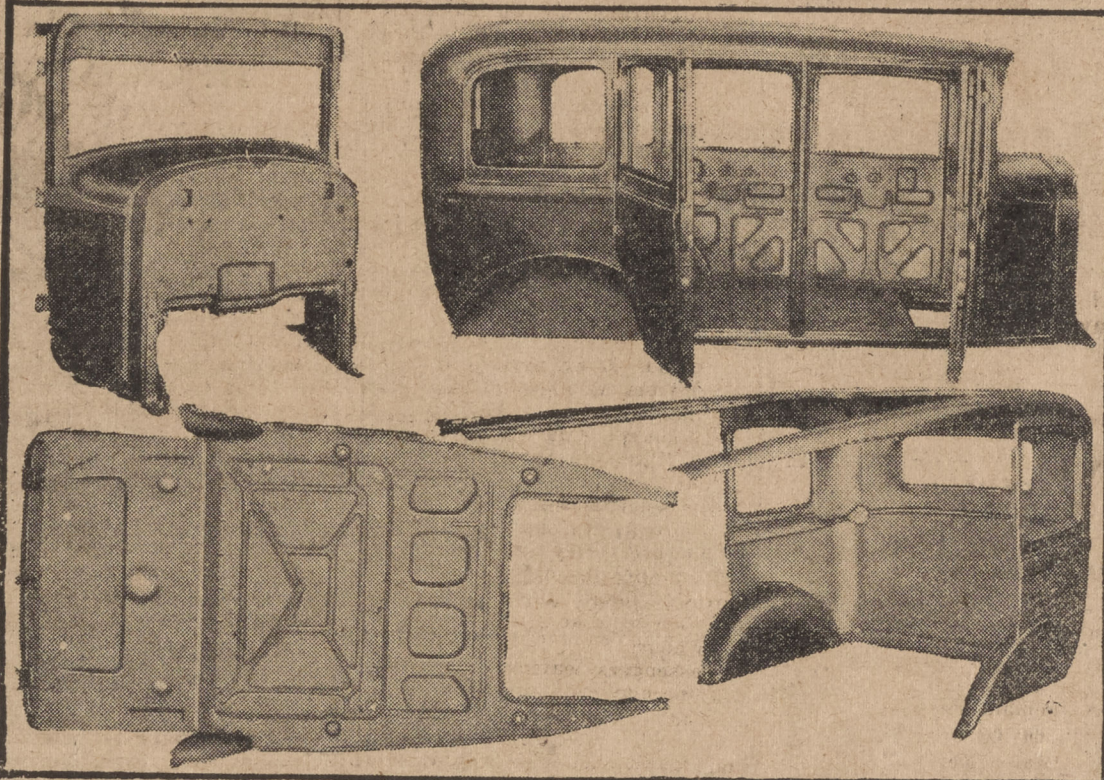

It was the racing car that brought the down-draft principle to its present development for the automobile. In November, 1926, Frank Lockhart broke the track record at Culver City with 145 miles per hour, using a down-draft carburetor mounted over the supercharger. The next year Lockhart, de Paolo, Duray, Woodbury, Comer and Arnold all used it at Indianapolis, and it has been in nearly all racing cars since.

As long as thirty-five years ago, Maybach, the famous German engineer, included a down-draft design in his first automotized carburetor. During the war two inverted carburetors were designed for airplanes. The war ended before they went into production. Since 1927 down-draft has been used on a well-known marine engine, and back of this, for a generation or so, it has been standard equipment of a famous tractor engine. An improved fuel pump made possible its use in passenger cars.

"The great advantage of down-draft carburetion, as employed on the DeSoto straight eight," says A. R. Weisgerber, 1201 Macdonald avenue, "is the better performance obtained from the fuel. It provides 13 percent more power, faster acceleration, more flexibility, easier starting, improved performance in high gear with the De Soto, with efficient performance throughout the entire range. This saves gear-shifting in traffic and gives fine performance on the open road. The down-draft manifold that accompanies the new carburetor gives even distribution of the mixture to all cylinders and aids in complete vaporization of the gas, because the intake is designed like a Venturi tube, similar to that used in the carburetor.

"With the down-draft principle, gravity aids the flow of fuel, instead of having to rely entirely on the pull of the engine. Also, more air in proportion to gas is burned, because the down-draft method is cooler and prevents over expansion of the air before it goes through the manifold."

Strong And True

Don't Speed For Right Of Way

When two drivers approaching an intersection have the slightest doubt as to who has the right of way, it is wisest for both drivers to stop before trying to decide the question, advises the public safety department of the California State Automobile association.

Approximately 70 percent of the accidents occur at intersections, so it is apparent that if drivers will be more cautious at points where roads cross, a material reduction will be effected in California's

Keep Wheel Nuts Tight

When tightening rear wheel nuts on your car, the nut should be tight enough to preclude the possibility of the wheel hub working on the key, according to the California State Automobile association. If the wheel works loose, it does not take long to enlarge the key-way in the hub or axle. Once enlarged, it is practically impossible to keep the wheel tight without making replacements.

Drivers Urged To Keep In Lanes

Turning at intersections is much easier when drivers obey the law with regard to being in the proper lane when turning.

The California State Automobile association also points out that many accidents are caused by drivers who are not in the proper lanes, attempting to turn left from the right edge of the highway, or to the right from the center of the highway. This failure to observe the state law also inconveniences and causes delay to traffic following.

State Plans Elimination Of Grade Crossings

Elimination of 24 dangerous grade crossings, by construction of over-bridges or subways, is planned on the state highway system during the current biennium, according to department of public works reports received by the California State Automobile association.

STEEL BODIES FEATURE NEW CHRYSLERS

The gradual replacement of wood by steel in automobile bodies has reached its height in the coachwork of the new low priced Chrysler six with a body that has less wood in it than any other body built today, according to Harry Curry, 1401 Macdonald avenue. Duplicating a practice of builders of railway coaches and ocean liners, automotive engineers have turned to the all-metal design as one of offering longer life, greater safety, maximum vision and room, lower center of gravity and improved style.

"Five steel assembly pieces fused together by a new electric welding process make the entire body a one-piece unit construction of strength and quietness," said Curry, local Chrysler dealer. "Body joints have been eliminated and with them the probability of annoying squeaks and rattles which make new cars seem old. It is impossible for the doors to sag or warp."

"The body, having the inherent rigidity of any box structure, is really as rigid as the frame. When fastened to that frame by eighteen bolts, body and frame comprise a unified structure that is a material factor in the long life of the car."

Solid Steel
"The under-body is a huge solid steel stamping so shaped that it takes the place of side and cross sills in ordinary body construction, and at the same time forms the floor of the rear compartment. Welded to this under-body assembly, are the front seat riser and the pillar brackets for the rear door."

"Depressions and ribs stamped in the metal prevent drumming and vibration, while rubberized fabric shims insulate the under-body from the frame."

"The front end section is a one-piece steel stamping that includes the front pillars, cowl bar and windshield header bar to which are electrically welded the steel stamping, comprising the pillar panels, windshield header panel and front roof panels. Another single stamping includes the top railers and front side reinforcements. All this assembly is welded to the front pillars and under-body to prevent squeaks and shimmy."

Strong Body
"Equally as strong is the rear body assembly which consists of one-piece steel stampings forming the back panel, right and left quarter panels and the side roof panels."

"The parts are so fused by welding that after polishing, the metal is actually a single continuous piece."

"The right and left center pillars comprise the two remaining steel assembly sections of this sturdy body. These stampings are welded and riveted to the under-body and top. Doors are made from five steel stampings, the inside panels being ribbed to prevent vibration."

New Features
"The roof is a wooden frame, reinforced by steel strips. Two boys are wood covered by a wire of coarse mesh, insulated by felt pads. The construction of the roof is such that it can be used for a radio aerial at any time."

"New scientific principles of body engineering are represented throughout this construction, and it is offered for the first time on the lowest priced six-cylinder car ever to bear the Chrysler name."

NASH COMPANY ANNOUNCES DIVIDEND

At a directors' meeting of the Nash Motors company held at Kenosha, a dividend of $1.50 per share was declared payable on May 1 to the stockholders of record at the close of business April 21, according to word received yesterday by Roy K. Dorr, local Nash dealer.

The balance sheet and earnings statement for the first quarter, which included December, 1929, and January and February, 1930, disclosed that the company had earned $1,732,512.03, after all expenses of manufacturing, including depreciation, selling and administration, and providing for both state and federal taxes.

Commenting upon the action of the board in declaring the dividend President Nash stated that the company over a period of years had been accumulating a large cash surplus to take care of dividends in just such times as we are now passing through. He stated that this accumulation of cash surplus rightly belonged to the stockholders, and in his judgment this was the proper time to distribute a little of it to them.

President Nash also said that a business should not be judged from a single year's operation. At the beginning of a business, a sound financial policy should be established and its affairs conducted along lines that would place it in a position to look after its stockholders if there came to be a short period when business was not as brisk as it should be. The fact that the Nash Motors company is in a position to pay a dividend of $1.50 per share from earnings and surplus justifies the belief that the policy under which it has operated has been a sound and safe one.

An action of the board of directors that will prove to be of very great interest to all stockholders and to the public generally was the election of E. H. McCarty as vice president, general manager and director of the company. McCarty is a nationally known figure in the automobile business. He retired from active business about one year ago. He now returns to the company to become prominent in its general affairs.

Nash further said "that conditions are looking much brighter for business in the immediate future. In the last week many of our distributors delivered, at retail, more automobiles than they had in any week since July, 1929. All of this indicates that the public is convinced that the Nash Motors company is building a reliable line of cars of excellent value and performance."

Nash predicted that business will go forward with more genius activity in the future than it has for many months in the past.

Development Of Canada Highways

Canada now invites motor tourists through the medium of approximately 400,000 miles of highways, according to the California State Automobile association. About 83 percent of this consists of earth roads and the remainder gravel and hard surfaced. Saskatchewan has 40 percent of all Canadian highways, Ontario has 17 percent, eight percent is in Quebec, with the remaining 35 percent distributed among the other provinces.

Road construction has become a more prominent Canadian activity under the stimulus of heavy motor travel from the United States, which has been reflected in the general prosperity of the Dominion. It is estimated that $38,912,029 was expended for the building of road sin 1928 and $18,963,381 for maintenance.

Columbia River Bridge Now Open

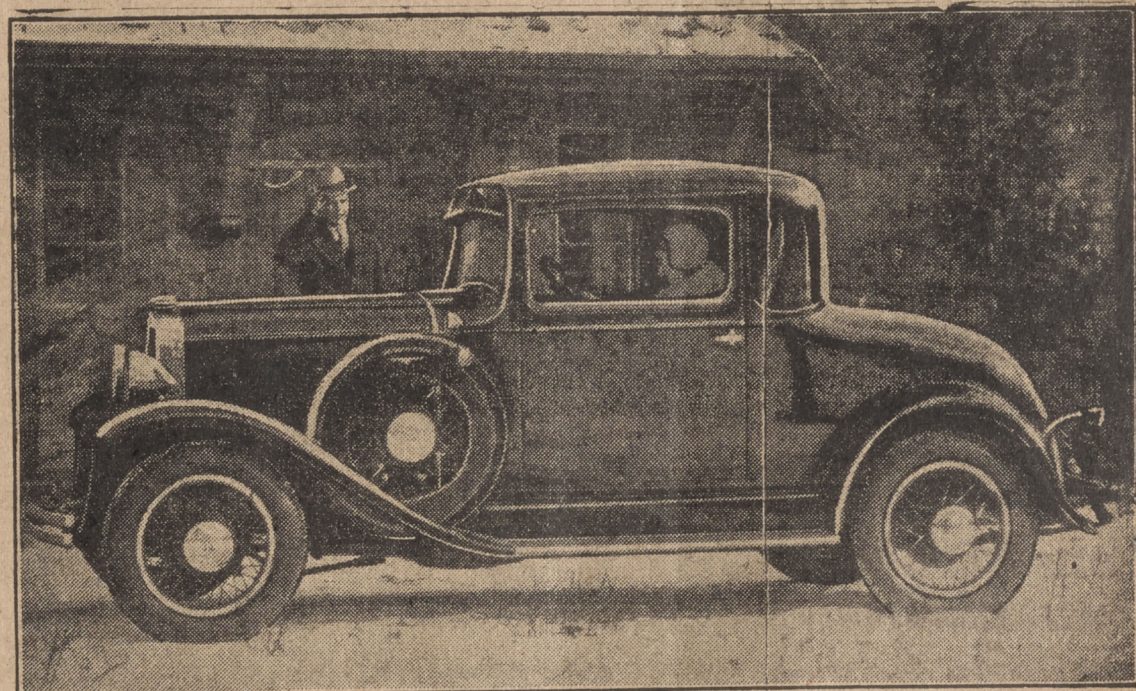

The new Columbia River Longview bridge which crosses the Columbia river between Rainier and Longview and which has been under construction for the past year is now open to traffic, reports the California State Automobile association. The toll charges on this bridge for private automobiles, exclusive of driver and passenger is 65 cents for each person, whether abroad car or on foot, 15 cents.

More Powerful Cars Today

If the family bus hasn't got the old "get up and git" anymore, you will find more powerful machines on the market, for figures show that the average passenger car has increased 54 percent in power in the past five years, reports the California State Automobile association.

Demand for power and smooth performance has forced a more rapid change in motor vehicle design than is generally realized, says the American Research foundation following a survey.

In 1925 only two modes developed one hundred horse power or more, whereas 28 different models of 1930 developed one hundred horse power or more. The foundation studied 63 models that were in use in 1925 and 83 models of 1929.

Shock Absorber Needs Checking

When checking your car, don't overlook the shock absorber anchorage, advises the California State Automobile association. If allowed to become loose, these units often cause an annoying rattle.

"Cutting In" Held Unlawful

Every person capable of driving should know when it is reasonably safe to turn in front of another car after passing it.

The California State Automobile association points out that the state law regarding overtaking a vehicle says simply: "Any vehicle overtaking another vehicle proceeding in the same direction shall pass at least two feet to the left thereof, and shall not again be driven to the right side of the highway until reasonably clear of such overtaken vehicle."

Motorcoaches In U. S. On Increase

In the four years preceding 1928 the number of motorcoaches operated in the United States increased from 53,900 to 86,000, reports the California State Automobile association. At the beginning of 1929, 322 steam and electric railroads were operating 11,213 motorcoaches, and 45 companies operated 22,65 percent of all the common-carrier motorcoaches of the United States.

Replace Thin Brake Drums

If brake drums on your car are thin, it is advisable to replace them when re-lining the brakes, rather than attempt to true them by undercutting. A thin drum will partially collapse when pressure is applied, resulting in squeaky brakes and reduced efficiency, according to the California State Automobile association.

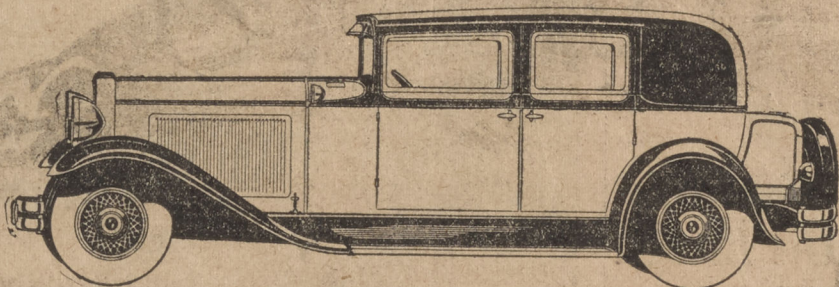

Surfaced Roads In Big Increase

From 1925 to 1929 the mileage of surfaced highways in the United States increased from 471,667 to 615,000. Present construction programs promise an even more rapid increase in the near future, points out the California State Automobile association.

Smart to own.. thrifty to drive .. topping its field in value

Judging the value of a motor car is just a common sense matter of weighing what it gives you against what it costs—and the obvious starting point is the amount of money you have to spend. What will $1,000 buy in today's motor car market? A few months ago, such a sum would limit you to a six-cylinder car—now it will buy a straight eight—a Chrysler-built De Soto—the lowest-priced eight in the world. By every standard of value, the De Soto Eight is a true leader. You may think of it in terms of low price—but you will buy it because of its high quality. A few minutes behind the wheel will convince you, beyond all doubt, that an equal number of dollars cannot buy its equal from any other source.

LONGMONT, Colo. — Bulgaria is a better place for Tom Vercoff, 35, than the United States, according to his own opinion. After being arrested and fined $100 for drunken driving, he decided to return to his native land.

TENNIS TEAM WILL MEET SUTTER

The Richmond tennis team will travel to Sacramento today to meet the Sutter Tennis club of that city in state inter-club tennis competition. The singles matches will take place at 10 a. m., this morning, and the doubles will be played in the afternoon.

Richmond athletes who are to make the trip to the capital city are C. O. Bryant, Jim Hurley, Jack Murdock, Phil Carlin, Irwin Sutton, Darrow Sutton and Reese Hayes.

The standing of the teams in the central California division is as follows: Oakland, first; Sacramento, second; Richmond, third; and Mosswood fourth.

In the local tennis ladder tournament, Wally Kruger yesterday defeated B. Peterson, 6-3, 6-2.

Many Killed In Indian Revolt

CALCUTTA, April 19.—UP—The most serious revolutionary outbreak since the start of Mahatma Gandhi's independence campaign devastated the railroad station, police armory and other buildings at Chittagong and left all Bengal under stress of violence. About a dozen persons were believed dead in the fighting and many were wounded. The known dead included two Europeans, three constables and three taxi drivers. Government troops regained control of the situation late today after reinforcements had been hurried to the scene of the fight, but the recent uprisings and riots in Bengal province left Calcutta and other cities tense and fearful.

"Well?" He was sitting back in his chair comfortably, watching her. The lamp on the table flickered to a vagrant breath of breeze and began to smoke. Stella turned it down a little, and was glad of the lessened light. It made her feel a little more at ease.
"A week ago she learnt from Lora that we are not married," she went on, trying to keep her tone even. "I overheard them talking. Lora did not mean to betray us."
"Well?" he said again. He was most cold and unhelpful, she thought a little irritably.
"Don't you understand, David? Till last week she thought you married, and therefore ineligible. But now—"
"I understand perfectly," he broke in. "She has decided that I am to be the fortunate man. Is that it?"
"You needn't be ribald about it." He was regarding her very thoughtfully now. His pipe had gone out; but he made no effort to relight it. The faintest of breezes swished a palm-branch against the roof. From the roof came no sound, for the sea had been still for days.
"And that is why you wanted so badly to keep our secret from her?" he asked; and there was a hint of temper in his tone.
She hated him for the question. "I want to warn you, David. She is a bad influence."
"And that is why you took such a sudden dislike to this island the day we arrived? I thought it was more than a woman's whim. I am beginning to understand things now."
The thoughtful look had given place to an angry gleam. He put down his pipe.
"You are absurd!" he said. "I had no idea you could be so absurd—and mean!" Stella reflected that they were almost the very words he had used to her during their quarrel on the cutter the day of their arrival.
"Anyway," he went on, "what if Moira does like me, and I like her? What if she does consider me a suitable person to be her husband? What has it got to do with you?"
"You mean—you cast it in my face that I have no legal hold on you?" The words came dragging from her.
"I'm getting tired of your ridiculous nonsense, Stella. Dead sick of it. I never see a smile on your face, now—nothing but a sorrowful, mournful look that's enough to give a man the creeps; and you've become that disagreeable that I never know how to take you. Don't you think I've enough trouble on my mind—what with the cutter being so long overdue, and the natives making a fuss about it, and the trading stopped—without having a jealous woman to contend with also?"
He rose jerkily, and began to pace the room with a short, agitated stride.
"There's no wonder I prefer Moira's company. She is always bright and cheerful enough. Why the devil can't you be like her?"
"You said just now—reminded me—that I had no legal hold on

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

SYNOPSIS
David Wade and Stella Blackney (the latter secretly married to O'Shane who had robbed Wade) take refuge on the island of Moira where they disappear in trade with the natives. Stella comes to love David and tears the half-caste girl, Moira, whom they have taken to live with them at her dying father's request, will win David away from her if she learns that David is single. Moira does learn this soon after their first ship, loaded with opium and pearls leaves for Tama. Moira tells Stella that David is just the sort of man she has longed for for a husband and that she is doing to win him if she can.

Moira does learn this soon after their first ship, loaded with opium and pearls leaves for Tama. Moira tells Stella that David is just the sort of man she has longed for for a husband and that she is doing to win him if she can.

For a long time she sat there, in complete submission to despair. Hope and happiness were gone from her. What else remained? She asked herself. Behind her through the palm-branches, gleamed the light in the house. Moira would be back from the village now, she thought. She would be with David. He might be telling her of the canoe. And she would be comforting him. Comforting him! Ah, well, it didn't matter now. Nothing mattered now. She rose and went slowly along the beach. She thought she might feel a little better if she couldn't see the light. Presently she came to a small canoe afloat against the beach, left there for the night by its fisherman owner. The fancy came to her to drift awhile on the soft, inviting bosom of the lagoon. Its peace seemed promising of comfort. Half an hour—an hour—on that soft, velvet water—
She cast off the fastening rope, stepped on board, and sat down. The canoe drifted slowly out. She did not notice that there was no paddle in the canoe, nor that the sailing tide was carrying her towards the exit of the lagoon.

CHAPTER XIII
Anxious, troubled and afraid of his thoughts, David Wade knocked on the wall beside the curtained doorway of Moira Melrose's room.
"Moira!" he called. "Are you awake, Moira?"
A soft "Come in!" answered him, and he pulled aside the curtain. The half-caste's mosquito netted bed stood at the opposite end of the room.
"I am sorry to disturb you," said Wade, "but—"
"You are not disturbing me, David," her voice came to him, low-toned and alluring. Then, as he made to move, her bare arm came out and threw up the side of the mosquito-net with a movement distinctly inviting.
"Have you seen Stella?" he asked sharply.
"Stella?" She sat up, a white shape down which the blackness of her hair was like a torrent. "You've come here—to look for Stella?" The allure in her tone was gone, displaced by something akin to disappointment.
"I thought you might have seen her, that perhaps she had been here," said Wade. "She—she doesn't appear to have been home all night."
"I have seen nothing of her," she rose, wrapped herself in a many-colored kimono, which disconcertingly revealed her body's lines, and came to him.
"You seem very concerned."
"Naturally. I am afraid to think what might have happened to her. You see, last night we—"
"Yes?" she interrupted putting into the questioning note something more than mere questioning.
"We had a disagreement," he went on agitatedly, "and I am afraid I said something which hurt her very much. I haven't seen her since, and do you think—she—she would be likely to—"
"She would be likely to—"
"Of course she wouldn't; she is too sensible."
"What were you disagreeing about—David?" she asked in a half-drawn tone.
"A private matter," he replied absently.
The hint of satisfaction in her smile became more than a hint.
"I wonder if I can guess what it was," she said.

2 DEAD, FOUR WOUNDED IN RIOT

committed suicide, and Miller, who was injured in the riot.

Ask To See Pal
The request was made of Guard McVey, who at the time was fumbling for his keys to let 16-year old Thelma, daughter of Warden Charles Linscott, out of the prison.

Before McVey could produce his keys, one of the three men stepped up to him, thrust a revolver against his side and said: "Stick 'em up."

McVey refused and seized the man with the gun. As he did so, the other fired, the bullet lodging in the guard's breast.

Alarm Given

Champlin, the veteran trusty, serving a life sentence for murder, was in the rotunda and heard the shot. He turned in time to see McVey fall to the floor. After pressing the button which sounded a general alarm, Champlin rushed to the aid of the wounded guard. He never reached his destination.

A bullet apparently fired by one of the three men who had arrived in the Massachusetts car, struck him, and he fell dead.

Trusty Wounded

Another trusty, Nicholas Faccio, serving a 30-year term for murder, also was in the rotunda and witnessed the double shooting.

In the prison side of the rotunda screen, Little Thelma Linscott had witnessed the shootings. She called to James Meehan, a guard, but when he responded, he was intercepted by Miller and McNeill, who apparently by pre-arrangement had assumed leadership of the rioting prisoners. The two convicts overpowered him and took his gun away.

Meanwhile, Thelma had rushed to the prison barber shop. Five or six prisoners who wished to avoid being involved, trailed her.

Felons Hide

Suddenly the girl turned on them. "No," she said, "Go into the clothes closet and keep quiet. Keep out of this trouble."

After they had taken refuge in the nearby storage room, three or four more convicts appeared at the barber shop door.

"Go into the cell block and keep out of the way," she ordered, and the prisoners retreated out of the line of fire.

Bullets were flying now. It was estimated that 40 shots were exchanged while the battle lasted.

Levi Davis, another guard, had started down a narrow, winding stairway. At the bottom three or four prisoners overpowered him and stole his gun.

Two guns had been smuggled into the prison to McNeill and Miller before the struggle began.

A total of 15 prisoners, apparently familiar with the program for the afternoon, were taken to the prison library under the leadership of Miller and McNeill. They were later captured.

BUDD SCOUTS BIG RAIL MERGER

ST. PAUL, April 19.—UP—Negotiations for the proposed merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads were clouded tonight by a statement from Ralph Budd, Great Northern president, that he doubts whether the consolidation will be effected.

"While I believe the merger exceedingly desirable from an economic standpoint," Budd said, "I also think it is doubtful whether it can be accomplished."

The Great Northern president indicated lack of progress in the merger negotiations made it possible for him to accept an invitation to make a survey of the railroad system in Russia.

No Hope

"The most difficult clause in the commerce commission ruling is the ordering of the disposal of the Burlington stock owned by the Northerns," Budd said, "All Northern lines officials agree the unified system would not serve the north-west satisfactorily without a direct entry into Chicago."

"In any event, I do not believe any report can be transmitted to the commission for several months. I am satisfied it will be impossible to reach any conclusion before my return from Russia in September."

Budd said the unification would result in an annual saving of $10,000,000 in the nation's transportation bill. The saving, he said, would materially benefit patrons of the lines and would cause no decrease in employment.

Lands Plan

"The proposed saving involves a reduction of only about 4 percent in the total number of employees," he said, "This would be made up by the ability of the new system to increase its equipment, building activities and additional employment for mining and distributing fuel."

"There is no question but that shippers would benefit by the economies in operation costs and I have heard of no other way in which so large a reduction in transportation costs can be obtained."

Four representatives of the Russian railway commission conferred with Budd and other Great Northern officials today over the means to be used in reorganizing the 35,000 miles of railroads in their country. Budd will be accompanied on the trip to Russia by H. K. Duran, executive assistant, and W. R. Wood, mechanical engineer of the Great Northern staff.

Police Probe Note Finding

MARTINEZ, April 19.—Investigation into what may possibly be a tragedy, was today under way by sheriff's officers here, following the discovery of a note in a bottle near Oleum that declared the sender was about to die.

The note said: "My last act on earth. There is no hope. I have been here 42 days and cannot last much longer. There is no hope. Notify police." The note was signed, "C. R. Monroe, 2036 First street, Los Angeles." Under the signature was written, "Jack Monroe."

Although some suspicion was voiced that the note might be a hoax, officers are investigating in towns along the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers for missing people.
